London, June 11.—Arrangements for the celebration of the golden wedding to-day are complete. The Emperor and Empress are both in good health, although the Emperor still walks with some difficulty and pain. Throughout Germany the day is being observed as a National festival. Some disappointment is felt at the declination of the Czar to be present at the "fetex," and is added to somewhat by the fact that the Czarowitch has also refused to attend.

The online is freely expressed that

Carowitch has also refused to attend.

The opinion is freely expressed that the heir to the Russian throne, instead of becoming any more friendly to the German Empire, has permitted his antipathy against it to increase.

The different seeleties uset at headquarters, Turner Hall, at 2 o clock this afternoon, and, after a short interval, formed into line, as already announced in our columns.

The order of line was as follows.

The order of line was as follows.

There were six divisions in the procession and they met and took position to move in the procession as follows:

First Division formed on Twelfth right resting on Walnut, and deployed west.

Second Division formed on Walnut, right resting on Twelfth, and deployed morth.

Third Division formed on Liberty, right on Walnut, deployed west.

The agitation among our citizens when the procession formed was unbounded.

The whole city seemed to be in a state of excitement, and almost every one who was not confined to his work was out on the pavement looking at the largest parade that ever took place in the Paris of America.

It took some time of course to get the immense procession started, and when the various societies flied through the arch at Turner Hall, the actual time consumed in passing was nearly one hour.
